The boys are enjoying every minute on the lake and vote Norway a capital town.

Shirley McKay is visiting friends in Lewiston and Auburn. Frank H. Richardson, George L. Sanborn, Carl Foss and Eugene H. Vicker, Andover Surplus brook and caught trout last Friday. The law requires that they be six inches long and limits the catch to 25 fish per day. The party kept within the law and the writer had a couple of fish too.

A fishing party consisting of Jameson Finney, Frank Russell, Dr. Arthur Easton, Clarence Parker, and B. L. Warner left Thursday evening at 8 o'clock for Hastings by auto with Clarence Parker as chauffeur. Some little difficulties along the route ensued, horses never came along the route in the middle of the night, into play in the middle of the night, a sudden ending and in the small hours of the morning the party lied down to rest for an hour. Fishing then began in the tributaries of Wilder river and a fine string of trout were caught by each in the party.

Holy Communion will be observed at 7:30 A. M. at the Episcopal Church Sunday. Morning prayer and Holy Communion at 10:45 and evening prayer at 7. F. Robert Seavey, Capt. J. Waldo Nash, Alton L. Curtis and Ray Eastman left early Saturday morning for South Arm on a fishing trip. The party returned Sunday afternoon with a good catch of fish.

Dr. and Mrs. H. C. Metcalf and two children of Cambridge and family. Mrs. Metcalf is the Judge's sister.

Services will be held at the Methodist church next Sunday as usual with sermon by the pastor, Rev. H. L. Nichols at 10:30 and 7. Sunday school will be held at 11:45, and the Epworth League will be at 12:30. The regular meeting of the churches which are closed for the vacation period are cordially invited to worship at their convenience with this church.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morgan of Auburn, were recent guests of Walter Morgan and family.

Mrs. Grace Wells, who, with Lillian Waltron, both of Portland, have been visiting Mrs. John Hutchins, returned to Portland Saturday. Miss Waltron will remain for a longer stay. Mrs. Hutchins was in Silver Lake Cemetery. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Richardson of Mechanic Falls were visitors of Mrs. Mary J. Bennett Sunday.

George Hancock was the expressman Saturday while Mr. Curtis was away on a fishing trip.

A number of Norway young people are enjoying a two weeks' house party at the cottage of Leoline Robinson of Oxford at her guests on Maguire Island at Lake Thompson. Those in the party are Leoline Robinson of Oxford, Gertrude Leoline Robinson of Oxford, Isabelle Ward of Brookline, Mass., Ruth Locke of Newton, Mass., Beatrice Parker of New Britain, Conn., Joe Houghton of Boston, Hugh Pendexter of Norway, Richard Stiles of Portland and Ruth Cummings of Norway.

Charles Cardale and daughter of Haverhill, Mass., and Mrs. Wm. A. Hutchins and Adelaide Hutchins of Exeter, N. H., are guests of Ernest W. Hutchins and family at Cedarbrook Farm.

Possibility of Letter Carriers

The Postal Rules and Regulations of the United States provide that any post office district is "entitled to free delivery if post office produced a gross revenue, for the preceding fiscal year, of not less than ten thousand dollars."

Now the gross revenue of this post office for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1916 was $10,210.47 and Postmaster De Coster has applied under this provision for the free house to house delivery by postmen-as is enjoyed in the cities.

However, in applying under this provision postmaster is required to give the population of the place, state whether the houses are numbered, the streets properly lighted, their names posted, and whether there are good continuous sidewalks throughout the district which it is proposed to serve by letter carriers.

Mr. DeCoster in his application fulfilled all these requirements and a post office inspector will be here in the near future to determine the possibilities of instituting the free delivery service. This would be a fine improvement and a good thing for the corporation, both collectively and individually, but should the inspector find a lack of numbered houses, we might not get it. Of course it is essential that all houses should be properly numbered to facilitate the directing and delivering of mail. If your house is not numbered, why not do it now and thus be instrumental in securing for the town an additional improvement?

Norway To Have New Postoffice. The Post Office Department at Washington has accepted the offer of F. H. Beck to provide accommodation for a new and up to date post office on his lot occupied until recently by the Elm House.

Mr. Beck expects at present that the work of clearing the lot and building the new block will be postponed until later on in the summer. He plans now to build a two story cement block with a garage in the rear. The first floor of block to contain post office and display shop for automobiles. The upper story to be used for two tenements. However, Mr. Beck reserves the right to change his mind about his plans for construction.

Christina B. Larry. Christina B. Larry, aged 74 years, wife of Samuel H. Larry, died at her home at Athol, Mass. early Sunday morning after an illness of several months with a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Larry was born Feb. 2, 1842, at Lee, daughter of Bartimus and Matilda Dunham. Her early life was spent in her native town. She married Samuel H. Larry at South Paris, in 1862. They lived in Norway till 1888, when they moved to Athol. Mrs. Larry was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends who will deeply mourn their loss. She was a great lover of flowers and each season her flower gardens were much admired.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1912. Mrs. Larry was the mother of five children: Stephen E. of Athol, Winfield L., with Mass. R. R. Commission of Boston, Percy R., the late Mrs. C. C. Hall of Groveland, and Delia, who died in childhood.

Mrs. Larry is survived by her husband, three sons and eight grandchildren. Funeral services were held from the late home Tuesday afternoon, Rev. C. O. Eames officiating, attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. Burial was in Silver Lake Cemetery. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

Democratic Rally. A Democratic rally was held at the fair grounds, Tuesday afternoon with men and women in attendance.

The speakers for the afternoon were Kenneth G. N. Sills, Dean of Bowdoin college and candidate for United States Senator, Governor Oakley C. Curtis and Senator Daniel J. McGillicuddy. They refuted by statistics and other methods, the statements made about them by their opponents and in introduced arguments and figures tending to prove that the good times under the present administration were only in a way the results of the war.

Senator M. McGillicuddy discussed the Federal Reserve Act and showed how it prevented panics like the one in 1907 by giving to United States Currency a certain elasticity. This banking reform was one of the causes for the prevailing good times.

Music was furnished by the Bethel band.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester V. Ashton leave Sunday morning for a two weeks' vacation at Higgins Beach.

Mrs. Mildred E. Lane and daughter, Rosamond G. Lane, returned to New York City, Monday, after a two weeks' visit with her father, Capt. Wright Bisbee.

C. C. Hussey has been to Auburn and Lewiston for a few days. Mr. Hussey has been stopping with his son, Horace E. Hussey for several weeks, where he has cultivated a fine garden. At the last report one of his squash leaves had reached twenty inches across. Mr. Hussey is a veteran of the Civil War and a member of the 8th Maine regiment.

"No, I would not go with any of you for anything," a girl was heard to remark in a loud, strong tone of voice, as she gave a wink to Norway's Main street road builders. They were busy toilers and did not heed. Back and forth, back and forth fared the girl and her friend day after day as though the sidewalks of Norway were a vaudeville stage and their endless stunts what the occasion called for. O, mother or guardians take these young girls from our streets, hire Norway Opera House if they must perform, but many of our people feel that our streets and street corners are not suitable places for public exhibitions.

Mrs. George W. Holmes was in Portland, Wednesday and returned with Nellie Brown, who has been at the Eye and Ear Infirmary for treatment.

Mildred Holmes is spending a few days with her friend, Helen Howe, in the Yaggar Neighborhood.

Some sort of a sign is much needed at the junction of upper Bridge and Main streets to inform autoists and drivers of teams that there is no passing from Bridge street into Maine street.

In great numbers are "aged" on Water street and the street in front of the Advertiser office has become genuine turn table.

Ralph Harney, a Massachusetts Cavalryman

Private Ralph Harney of Framingham of Troop D, 1st Squadron Massachusetts Cavalry, a former Norway boy, writes home from Fort Bliss, where he is in camp with other cavalry recruits who left two weeks ago, the following interesting letter under date of July 17:

"Dear Mother: Arrived here safely on Saturday but did not have time to write until now. I stood the trip well. The weather was not too warm nor is it here."

"I am standing the climate finely. The thermometer rises much higher than in Boston, but the air is different and there is no humidity, therefore the heat is not oppressive."

"We are being well fed. For dinner Sunday we had roast beef, potatoes, green string beans, two kinds of ice cream. Every day we have three good meals."

"This place is not half as bad as the papers make out. I would like to stay some time. Stories about tarantulas, etc. seem to be all bunk, as I have yet to see any."

"The recruits have not yet been permitted to go to El Paso as they are not acclimated yet. However, we are acclimated enough to work as hard as the fellows who have been here three weeks. Next Sunday we shall be permitted to go to El Paso."

"I met Higgins and Forbush and also Grant here. They are all well and like it very much. We are to receive a lecture from the doctor to-night and therefore shall have to close."

Price of Auto attracts Judge's Attention. "Eighty dollars drop in Ford cars" said Judge W. F. Jones. "Guess they are getting down so low that they are worth nothing."

"Just think of it $360.00 for a new auto and the best for the money made."

We feel that the Judge can easily and safely own any auto he feels to buy, be it a low priced or high priced. He has the "rocks" and plenty of 'em."

He has a family of three worthy girls and a son who will insist that he buys a car. He will do it too!

Steeves-Felton. A very pretty wedding took place at the Methodist parsonage, Sunday morning at nine o'clock, when William B. Steeves of Hartland and Nina Felton of West Paris were united in marriage by Rev. H. L. Nichols.

The double ring service was used. The happy couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. McAllister of Norway. Mr. Steeves is employed as a cutter in the woolen mill at Hartland. Mrs. Steeves is a sister to Leola Steeves of this place, is a graduate of the State Normal school at Gorham, and for the past two years has taught in the schools of Hartland, the past year having been assistant in the high school.

They immediately went to Hartland, where they will make their home.

Baptist Church Notes. Rev. G. H. Newton and family who have been spending the month of July at Cape Porpoise, return home this week.

All services at the Norway church will be resumed—Sunday School at 2:30, Preaching service at 7:30 and C. E. Thursday evening at 7:30.

Miss Helen Dunn has been engaged as organist.

An invitation is extended to all strangers and friends to attend these services.

L. Agnes Campbell is having a week's vacation from the lower Maine coast and is at the State Senator.

Mrs. G. F. Stone, Eleanor D. Davis and Phil Stone visited friends in Bethel and Waterford, recently. They made the trip in Packard's automobile.

Mr. N. D. Gould of Portland is the guest of Mrs. Gertrude Barker.

Edward Eganwinter's two little daughters are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Everett Bicknell for a few weeks.

Mrs. Freeland Howe, Jr., returned Wednesday from Nevada City, California where she has been living since last October with her mother and nephew, Mrs. Ann M. Brown and Dana Brown, who have been living there for the past three years, but formerly lived in Bangor, Me.

Mrs. Howe's mother and nephew and wife returned with her to visit Mr. and Mrs. Howe in Norway.

Fred Brown has purchased the Stuart Goodwin lot on lower Main street and below T. L. Heath's and will build a bungalow style house on it. He expects to begin right away.

Freeland Howe, Jr. is to add a line of sheet music to his musical goods at his store. The music will be of sale soon. He is also tearing down the old bakery oven and will have a larger room for display of victrolas, sheet music, etc.

Charles Pike and Carl Foss were on a successful fishing trip in Mason, Tuesday catching all the law would allow.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cummings are guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Ring at Kears Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. D. M. French are visiting friends in Portland.

The Grange Oxford County Field Day will be held at the fair grounds, Wednesday, August 9th. Among the speakers will be State Master, W. J. Thompson, President, Robert J. Ale, of the University of Maine and it is also expected that State Lecturer C. O. Purington will be present.

Mr. Bertrand D. Dunn is passing a two weeks' vacation in Worcester, Mass., as the guest of her brother, W. P. Brazier.

Mrs. Percy H. Nevers entertained the Foreign Missionary Society of the Congregational church at her home, Wednesday, August 3rd. The meeting was held on the lawn under the shade of the trees and twenty-four were present. The subject was foreign missionaries in China and Turkey. After the meeting a pleasant social hour was enjoyed and refreshments of punch, sandwiches, fancy crackers, cookies and assorted cake were served by the hostess.

Mrs. Florence Hall and daughters, Virginia and Elizabeth, went to Bridgton Monday where they are guests of Horace C. Hall and family.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Dunham and daughter, Nora, with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Young, spent Sunday at the Day of Naples.

A Recinding Town Meeting Suggested.

It has been suggested that town meeting be called and tested the way whereby the Board of Education or a committee were authorized to purchase the two house lots adjoining the High school building.

The buying of these lots is a needless waste of public funds and an injury to the village, inasmuch as one of the building lots are sacrificed, on one of which Mr. C. G. Blake was to have built this season.

We presume it is too late to undo the ill advised and foolish act of the few who attended the special town meeting. All the discussion in this paper, if we are rightly informed, was in favor of the enlargement of the school yard by purchasing even if condemnation proceedings had to be instituted.

The people seemed to forget there is plenty of land already owned by the town in the rear of the school building for all necessary enlargements and a gymnasium of colossal proportion.

It wouldn't be overlooking Main street and seen by electric and auto passengers, but it would be there just the same for athletic and other uses.

It is reported the town already owns so much yard-ground land that in years past the standing grass was sold from it and students were not supposed to wallow in dirt by using it as a play ground. It was not needed.

When will this foolish and unnecessary expenditure of public funds stop? When the people will take sufficient interest in affairs to inform themselves and attend town meetings and vote intelligently.

Ford Cars Indisputable. A four weeks old calf in the tourneau and a sheep in front with the driver were recently seen passing over Main street in a Ford touring car. The calf was fighting ugly and was trying to turn a somersault and break its neck.

This same car then next night moved down a hydrant and went right along as though nothing had happened.

2d Maine Boys May Vote. The question is often asked if the 2d Maine Infantry boys now in Texas will be allowed to vote in the coming September election and the information was given out Wednesday at the office of the adjutant general of Maine that arrangements were certainly be made for them to vote if in Texas at the time of election and of course if at home they will be entitled to vote anyway—if of a voting age.

Mrs. H. F. Andrews, Donald Andrews, Roland Andrews and Mrs. John P. Swain were in Portland Monday to visit Mrs. E. E. Andrews who is at St. Barnabas Hospital. Mrs. Andrews is gaining and expects to return home the last of this week.

Dr. B. F. Bradbury was in town over Sunday. He was accompanied by Wm. Stevens of Portland.

Doris Longley is working for Clinton S. Maseck at his store at The Weirs, N. H.

Mrs. Frank Kimball and son, Winfield, Mrs. Ada Gerry, Mrs. Howard Young, and Muriel Bowker of South Paris, visited Lake Grove and the State Fish Hatchery at Auburn, Thursday. They took a trip to Bridgton, Friday accompanied by Rosamond Lane of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodcock and Mr. and Mrs. Horace Kimball took a trip to Old Orchard, Sunday.

Tuesday a merry party consisting of Ruth Cummings, Sara and Marion True, Marion Haskell and Mrs. Howard Young took a trip to Lake Grove and attended the theatre. They returned by way of Hebron and enjoyed a picnic supper in the pine woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morgan of Auburn, have returned to their home after a visit a week with Mr. Morgan's brother, Walter Morgan of Norway.

Mrs. Walter Morgan is detained in Portland by the serious illness of her cousin, Warren McAllister. She was accompanied to Kennebunkport and Portland by Mrs. Fred Morgan of School street.

The district meeting of the Order of the Eastern Star was held at Bethel, Thursday, August 3rd. Among those who went from here were Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Smith and daughters, Elsie and Eleanor, Rosamond Nash, Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Hills, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodcock and Horace Kimball, and from South Paris were Mrs. Fred Wiggins and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Forbes.

A Republican rally will be held Monday evening at the Norway Opera House. Carl Munkittrick of Portland Falls, Frederick Hale of Portland, Wase White of Lewiston will be among the speakers of the evening.

Mrs. Elhanan Tubbs, Gladys and Virginia Tubbs went to Portland with Geo. T. Tubbs and spent Sunday with her son, Bert Tubbs.

The last services at the Congregational church before the summer vacation was held Sunday morning and were largely attended. There was a fine special program of music rendered which included selections by the choir, composed of Mrs. Luella C. Snidley, contralto, Marjorie Barker, soprano, Floyd Haskell, tenor, and Herman L. Horne, bass. Rosalie Horne of Lewiston sang a solo in a very pleasing manner and several fine violin selections were rendered by Marion Haskell, who is studying music at Boston.

The organist, Mrs. H. L. Horne, had charge of the music. Rev. Robert J. Bruce, the pastor, made a few preliminary remarks on the work of the church during the past year and spoke of his appreciation for his support of the congregation and is looking ahead for a greater work the coming year. Mr. Bruce took for his sermon subject, "The Consolation of Christ." The discourse was thoughtfully handled and proved a personal sermon to all. The next service will be held Sunday, September 3.

Work on the new bridge is getting along well. The surface is being rapidly removed and in time we shall have the good going on Main street. The car track is being worked upon again, the same crew which left a week or more ago returning Monday resuming work, raising the track to proper level and putting the new heavy rails to the Tanner bridge. Things look much like destruction around Main Street now but only a short time and construction will begin to be apparent.

A New Ford Sprinkler.

Friday night about the time people were going home from their work, a new form of entertainment was furnished to those passing by the corner of Paris and Main streets. The fact was that Ransom Gould with Mrs. Gould's nephew, Albert Grant of Manchester, N. H., driving his car along there at an unfortunate time for the Norway Water Works. At the same time John Swain happened on the scene with a load of hay bound with a protruding binding pole. Just then the car, which was a Ford, began to show almost animal instincts. First it appeared to be hungry for it approached the load of hay as if to eat but was held back by the protruding binding pole which did no damage except to tear off the binding strap from the automobile top and start the car in another direction. Then the car seemed to have acquired an immense thirst and making direct for the hydrant was seen to proceed like a new form of street sprinkler. The car had broken the hydrant, straight off, and was astride a regular geyser. Little damage was done to the car and it was able to go off by its own motive power, "and rambled right along."

Mr. Grant instead of putting his foot on the brake had, in his excitement, thrown the car into low gear. It was some three-quarters of an hour before the car got out of the water and the water stopped which was running down the street in a regular brook.

The water ran in such volumes down into Howard Drake's garden that it nearly washed it out. He also had to rescue his chickens from drowning. Howard has had hard luck the past season on account of high water and has had the garden washed out once or twice and the chickens have had to be carried to higher ground several times; he says next year he thinks he will try to raise ducks and pond lilies.

A New Norway History. Judge C. F. Whitman has commenced at the suggestion of some influential parties, writing a new history of Norway, several chapters of which have been completed. It will contain a great amount of valuable matter pertaining to the early settlement of the different tracts from which the town was formed which neither history has made mention, clear up several questions hitherto in doubt and fix beyond controversy the precise year of the coming of the earliest settlers.

The work will be replete with biographical sketches and stories of the pioneers and prominent men and the narrative brought down to the present day. A full list of the French and Indian Revolutionary War and soldiers who settled here will be given. The genealogical department will be a special feature and as full and complete as can be made.

There is no doubt that the production of this work will be looked forward to with the greatest interest by all interested in Norway.

Mrs. C. N. Tubbs has purchased a Ford auto and has had a self starter put on and made other improvements.

Dr. Frederick Dixon, formerly of Lewiston, but now of Denver, Colorado, is visiting his sister, Mrs. C. R. Ranger and Frank H. Richardson and wife. The doctor went several weeks ago to Colorado on account of his wife's health.

Harmon Klain has bought a Buick auto of Frank H. Richardson.

Tell the boys and girls who are visiting you to subscribe for the Advertiser and keep them posted on the local news. It will save you from writing letters.

LITTLE JOHNNY SMILES

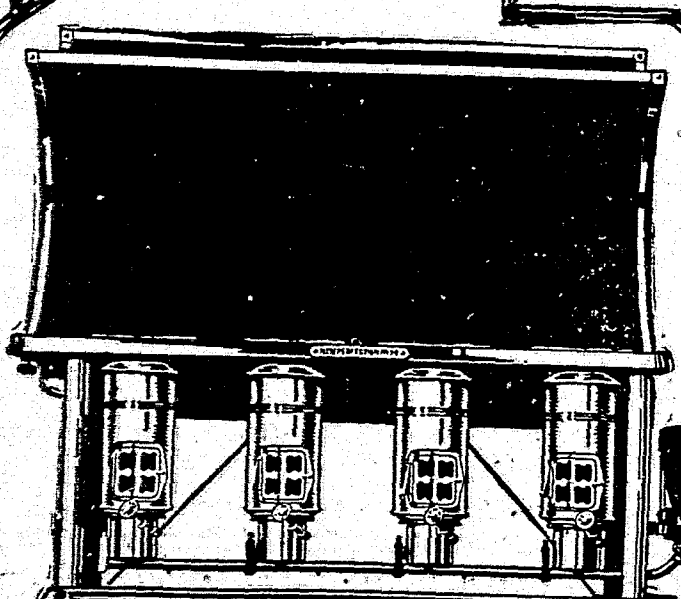

Why is little Johnny pleased?
Because he doesn't have to fill the coal-hod any more.

Is that all?
No. He doesn't have to fill the wood-box any more either, nor empty the ashes. You see, Johnny's mother has bought a New Perfection Oil Cook Stove. Instead of coal or wood, she burns Socony Kerosene Oil, and it costs her only six cents a day to cook for a family of six.

How nice for Johnny!
Look for the long blue chimney burner—that's what makes the New Perfection efficient and trouble-proof. The 1916 models have the new patented reversible glass reservoir and many other improvements. Sold in 1, 2, 3- and 4-burner sizes (by hardware, furniture and general stores) everywhere.

WATERFORD

Fritz Hugo Muller

Fritz Hugo Muller was born in Russia, Nov. 17, 1845. He was educated in the schools of the kingdom and learned the trade of a miller from his father. He came to America when seventeen years of age and the Civil war being in progress, he served three years in the Union army. In 1875 he was married to Mrs. Lucinda Gupta Nava.

Mr. Muller has operated mills in North Waterford and Waterford and at one time conducted a meat market in Harrison. Since the passing of the mill business in this part of the country Mr. Muller has carried on a farm at South Waterford where he has resided since 1892.

For some time he has been afflicted with a heart trouble, but until last winter he made weekly trips to Bridgton with farm products, as had been his practice for a number of years. Since spring he has been confined to the house. He passed away peacefully Sunday evening.

Funeral services were held at his late residence Tuesday at 10 A. M. Rev. G. W. Sias was the officiating clergyman and the Mt. Trem Lodge F and A. M., of which Mr. Muller was a member, performed the Masonic rites.

Mr. Muller is survived by the wife above mentioned and an adopted son, John, who resided with him at the time of his death.

Mrs. Harriet Stimpson came Monday to see some time with her son, Dr. A. J. Stimpson.

Mrs. Sarah Wilson is expected this week.

100 YEARS OLD
A Presidential Message

Davis, West Virginia, July 25, 1916. I left my home in Bryant Pond on May 13, visited my daughter at Chocorua Inn in the White Mountains of New Hampshire, leaving there on July 6th for Davis, West Virginia to visit another daughter. At Boston I took the boat "Ontario" for Baltimore, Md., a sail which included three nights on the boat with a stop of several hours at Newport News, Va., a city of 30,000 population.

While waiting here I took a car and viewed the aviation field where the aviation school is taught. Charges for instructions are $500, charges for a spin through the air are $1.00 a minute only. This city also has a large ship building plant which employs 8000 men.

At 6 P. M. on July 8 we left Newport News for Baltimore, Md. About 7 P. M. word was given out that we would pass a German submarine, the Deutschland between 2.30 and 4 the next morning. A few of us, more enthusiastic than others, left our pillows at 3.50 and were on deck in the early morning mist and, much to our gratification, saw her pass and pull into harbor, protected by several small boats. She ran into an enclosure of heavy wire netting to protect her from the gaze of a curious mob.

From Baltimore I went direct to Altamont, Md. to be present at the one hundred birthday of Abraham Wilson, an uncle of my son-in-law. This took place on July 10 at the old Colonial Home. He was in full possession of his mental faculties, but his power of speech was much impaired, he entered into the occasion with considerable spirit. A number of addresses were delivered and there was general feasting in honor of the occasion and our 300 relatives and friends were present. A telegram was sent to President Wilson telling of the hundredth birthday of the patriarch and the assembling of the Wilsons, all wishing him well in his undertakings, to which President Wilson sent this reply:

The White House, Washington, D. C. July 12, 1916.

My dear Mr. Wilson:
May I not send to you and to the members of the Wilson family who gathered to celebrate on your one hundredth birthday anniversary, my cordial thanks for your generous message of greeting and good wishes. I appreciate your kind thought of me and congratulate you heartily upon the attainment of the century mark.

(Signed) Sincerely yours, Woodrow Wilson.

Mr. Abraham Wilson, Altamont, Maryland.

On July 23, the aged man passed away and the funeral was held at his home where he had lived for 92 years. 400 relatives and friends were present at the burial services. He was laid at rest in the family cemetery on the home place.

Mr. Wilson was a diligent reader and kept abreast of the times during his life. He was an extensive cattle buyer and spent much of his life in the saddle riding through the country buying cattle and horses. He never married, never used tobacco or intoxicants and was a man of strong physique.

—Mrs. Edward Thompson.

BETHEL

Yellow Day.

Unusual atmospheric conditions of haze and of smoke clouds drifting from huge forest fires on the Canadian side of the border, Sunday morning, gave a weird and uneasy appearance to the outside world. Shortly before 4:30 a. m., the shading of the sky was a sickly green, merging into greenish-yellow, and as the forenoon went on the color changed until all out-of-doors had much the same appearance as though viewed through a pair of amber glasses. Despite the haze, things near at hand stood out in sharp relief, almost as though seen through lenses. Lights burning shone with an unusually intense white light, and the flame of a match appeared nearly snow white when ignited outdoors during the early morning. At noon the amber hue had nearly faded away, but the light was dull and gloomy. At sunset the eastern horizon varied in color from a washed-out grey to a crushed raspberry tone.

It has been over 20 years since elements have combined to make conditions here so interesting and peculiar. Such days were not uncommon over a century ago and were known as "yellow" days; when they appeared it was a signal for many superstitious beings to set their homes in order and await with fear and trembling the coming of the end of the world.

Howard F. Maxim of Bethel, who is a relative of Sir Hiram Maxim, inventor of the gun by that name, has been successful as a small fruit grower since 1893. He now has 15 acres of raspberries in addition to large plots of strawberries and other small fruits. This year he expects to harvest 6000 bushels of raspberries alone. This success illustrates what can be done in Maine with small fruits and berries, when the best methods of fertilization, cultivation and handling are employed.

The Twelfth Maine Regiment will hold the 35th Annual Reunion of the Association at Cape Cottage Casino, Cape Elizabeth, on Thursday, August 17th, shore dinner at 12:30 p. m. will be served followed by a business meeting and election of officers for the ensuing year at 2 o'clock. The usual reduction of fares on the railroads will be arranged. The place is an ideal one—on the sea wall—where the cool sea breezes are always refreshing.

Slip a few Prince Albert smokes into your system!

You've heard many an earful about the Prince Albert patented process that cuts out bite and parch and lets you smoke your fill without a comeback! Stake your bank roll that it proves out every hour of the day. Prince Albert has always been sold without coupons or premiums. We prefer to give quality!

There's sport smoking a pipe or rolling your own, but you know that you've got to have the right tobacco! We tell you Prince Albert will bang the doors wide open for you to come in on a good time firing up every little so often, without a regret! You'll feel like your smoke past has been wasted and will be sorry you cannot back up for a fresh start.

You swing on this say-so like it was a tip to a thousand-dollar bill! It's worth that in happiness and contentment to you, to every man who knows what can be gotten out of a chummy jimmy pipe or a makin's cigarette with Prince Albert for "packing"!

An interesting, illustrated booklet on coffee. Send for it today. It's instructive. Tells that Coffee never should be "cooked." Boil the water NOT the coffee. Coffee should not stand around "all hours." Should be served immediately after "steeping." Such action eliminates practically every trace of tannin: makes a scientifically prepared food that delights the taste, relieves fatigue and sustains strength. Of course, The Great Essential is Good Coffee;

HAVE YOU BEEN SICK?

Then you realize the utter weakness that robs ambition, destroys appetite, and makes work a burden.

To restore strength and stamina that is so essential, nothing has ever equaled or compared with Scott's Emulsion, because its strength-sustaining nourishment invigorates the blood to distribute energy throughout the body while its tonic value sharpens the appetite and restores health in a natural, permanent way.

If you are run down, tired, nervous, overworked or lack strength, get Scott's Emulsion to-day. It is free from alcohol.

HIGHLY PRIZED

The following tribute to James Whitcomb Riley appeared in the New York papers. Mrs. Hayden prizes highly letters of greeting from the gifted poet and an autograph card sent her last Christmas by him. These were the words that he wrote:

"O Brother mine of birth Divine,
Upon this natal day of Thine,
Bear with our stress of happiness
Nor count our reverence the less,
Because, with glee and jubilee,
Our hearts go singing up to Thee."

James Whitcomb Riley.

He dwelt not on some lofty height,
Apart in stately space,
But down in fields and country lanes,
With children face to face.

"Knee deep in June," when roses bloom,
"At Old Aunt Mary's" too,
A boy, whose heart was always young,
The heart of youth he knew.

And if a token I might place
I'd send some children from the fields
With wild flowers he loved best.

Some "Orphan Annie" and the lass
Who "ain't a going to cry,"
And boys who know the "Swimming" hole
Beneath the summer sky.

Alma Pendexter Hayden.

THINK THINGS THROUGH.

Dr. Abraham Flexner, who is a life-long student of education, and for years has conducted a private school with marked success at Louisville, does not approve the idea that Latin, algebra, geometry and some other studies make for mental discipline. He has grave doubts, "very, very grave doubts—as to the soundness or value of our school procedure," and he says that if "parents are indifferent the schools suffer from loss of contact; if parents are meddlesome, the schools lose in authority and continuity."

While he avows his conviction of the "futility, wastefulness, and unwisdom of much of our education," he declares with emphasis that teachers and only teachers can effect the necessary improvements.

"The schools must be improved by schoolmen," Dr. Flexner asserts that the schools must be conducted by trained persons, but the training of these persons is largely antiquated. "Most teachers," he says, "do not really know why they teach, do they really know why they teach it in this or that way, at this or that time"; in other words they do "not think things through."

WILSON'S MILLS

Hannah Winslow Fickett.

Called to the higher life, July 27, Miss Hannah Winslow Fickett. She had been confined to her bed most of the time since February, when she had a severe attack of the grip. She died as she had lived, an exemplary Christian life. She lived for others, her kindness, unselfishness and conscientiousness were strongly marked characteristics of her whole life. She was truly one of the faithful few.

A daughter of one of the pioneers of Wilson Mills, Lemuel and Martha (Swett) Fickett, who came from Cape Elizabeth in 1831. She knew something of the hardships and deprivations of the pioneer's life. Her influence, her cheerful faith will long be remembered by all who met her.

The funeral was held at the Wilson Mills' chapel. Rev. P. T. Smith, the pastor, conducted the services and she was laid to rest with others of the family in the "Gods Acre" at her old home.

The flowers were many and beautiful and spoke of the fragrance and beauty of the life that was done with all earthly cares.

The farmers have had two weeks of fine weather and a large amount of hay has been secured in prime condition. Mean time the potato bugs have been getting in a lot of work. The watchword of the farmer is eternal vigilance.

D. S. York has been carried to Sturtevant to be under the care of a physician.

Mrs. Ella Hart had callers from Berlin, Wednesday.

F. P. Flint came up with a party of five. They will camp out at the head of the lake.

FRYEBURG

Children's Day.

The last Sunday in July for some years has been observed as Children's Sunday in the Fryeburg Church of the New Jerusalem. Therefore the services on July 30 were arranged with special reference to the children. The pastor, Rev. Baman N. Stone, preached an interesting sermon upon the words of the Scriptures given in First Samuel, third chapter, tenth verse and the subject was the Lord calling the "Child Samuel." The children assisted in the musical part of the service, as well as in the responsive readings.

According to the custom of this church Bibles and Books of Worship are presented to all those who have reached the age of 7 and 14 years within the past year.

Mary Eliza Sargent received the gift of a Bible and Helen Maude Sargent received the gift of a Book of Worship. The baptism of the infants, which usually is held on this Sunday has been postponed until sometime in August. The floral decorations consisted of sweet peas, sweet clover blossoms and other flowers. The Sunday school will now enjoy a vacation of several weeks.

Philip Abbott of Smith's Mills and William Locke of Portland have been recent Fryeburg visitors.

Mrs. Lois Stanton and her son-in-law, Lyman Hobbs, have been spending a few days in Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. Perley Brown attended the family reunion of the children and grandchildren of the late Samuel Warren, given by their mother, Mrs. Deborah (Lovell) Warren, on Sunday, July 23. It was given in honor of her second son, William Warren, the Wayside Inn, Searbury, Mass. Mrs. Warren, at the age of 75 years is still bright and active.

Attorney Marion Weston Cottle of Intervale, N. H., has returned from an extended visit to her sister, Jennie Williams Cottle at Buffalo, N. Y. She recently visited the Adirondack Mountains.

Lawrence Warren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Warren, who is attending the Military Training School at Plattsburg, N. Y., has received a high mark in rifle practice.

Mrs. James Turner of Auburn, Nova Scotia, who has been receiving medical treatment in Portland for a few weeks, is now the guest of her sister, Mrs. Sarah J. Allen.

Chautauque meetings will be held at North Conway, N. H., during the week of August 21. Interesting programs will be given.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Walker of Boston and Dr. I. C. Chiller Walker of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital of Brookline, Mass., and Mrs. Walker are among the recent guests at Walker Hill Farm on the Bridgton road, Fryeburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Robinson of Arlington, Mass., who are spending the summer in Fryeburg, are receiving interesting accounts of the busy life of the army on the Mexican border from their son, Warren E. Robinson. The latter is in the cavalry branch of the army and is stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas. He is in good health with the temperature of 14 degrees above zero.

The sun was obscured by the "smoke" of the Canadian fires on Sunday, July 30. There was a shower early in the afternoon, which seemed to clear the atmosphere a little and to render it less dark. Lights were needed in the churches during the morning service.

We will send you this paper four months on trial for 50 cents and you can pay any time during the trial. Write us or telephone 119:11.

Some one says: "Good horse sense of the people can always be depended on when all the people are informed." This may be true. We presume it is and that the voters at the recent senatorial primary election were not properly informed. Had they been Frank E. Gurnsey of Dover might have received the nomination instead of Ben Fernald of West Poland.

HAVE YOU BEEN SICK?

Then you realize the utter weakness that robs ambition, destroys appetite, and makes work a burden.
Foremost that strength and stamina that is so essential, nothing has ever equalled or compared with Scott's Emulsion, because its strength-sustaining nourishment invigorates the blood to distribute energy throughout the body while its tonic value sharpens the appetite and restores health in a natural, permanent way.
If you are run down, tired, nervous, overworked or lack strength, get Scott's Emulsion to-day. It is free from alcohol.

HIGHLY PRIZED

The following tribute to James Whitcomb Riley appeared in the New York papers. Mrs. Hayden prizes highly letters of greeting from the gifted poet and an autograph card sent her last Christmas by him. These were the words that he wrote:
"O Brother mine of birth Divine,
Upon this natal day of Thine,
Bear with our stress of happiness
Nor count our reverence the less,
Because, with glee and jubilee,
Our hearts go singing up to Thee."

James Whitcomb Riley.
He dwelt not on some lofty height,
Apart in stately space,
But down in solid country lanes,
With children face to face.
"Knee deep in June," when roses bloom,
"La Old Aunt Mary," too,
A boy whose heart was always young,
The heart of youth he knew.
And if a token I might place
I'd send some children from the fields
With daisies they loved best.
Some "Orphan Annie" and the lass
Who "ain't a going to cry,"
And boys who know the "Swimmin' hole"
Beneath the summer sky.
Alma Pendexter Hayden.

THINK THINGS THROUGH.

Dr. Abraham Flexner, who is a lifelong student of education, and for years has conducted a private school with marked success at Louisville, does not approve the idea that Latin, algebra, geometry and some other studies make for mental discipline. He has grave doubts, very, very grave doubts—as to the soundness or value of our school procedure, and he says that if "parents are indifferent the schools suffer from loss of contact; if parents are meddlesome, the schools lose in authority and continuity."

While he avows his conviction of the "futility, wastefulness, and unwisdom of much of our education," he declares with emphasis that teachers and only teachers can effect the necessary improvements.

"The schools must be improved by schoolmen."
Dr. Flexner asserts that the schools must be conducted by trained persons, but the training of these persons is largely antiquated. "Most teachers," he says, "do not really know why they teach this or that subject, nor given the subject, do they really know why they teach it in this or that way, at this or that time"; in other words they do "not think things through."

The College Graduate in Every Day Life

Many jokes are cracked at the expense of the college graduate making his start in daily life and business. Traditionally he is called conceited. It is supposed to take a year or two to knock the nonsense out of him. One would think he went out job-hunting with diploma in hand, ready from the start to give the boss full information on how to run his affairs.

As a matter of fact, one of the most valuable features of a college course is that it does take so much nonsense out of a fellow. If he has enough common sense, they don't stand the intimate jesting of the campus. He is laughed out of his conceits, shamed out of boorishness, and turned out a gentleman. The qualities grouped under the slang word "freshness" are hatched out of him. If he has self assurance, it is simply that he has already done something worth while and feels confidence in his new effort.

Of course he has his weakness. College life has so much social and sporting pleasure, so much is done for the boy, that the outside world must at first sight seem very cold and workaday place. But he foresees and expects all that.

The supposed conceit of the college boy is pretty much unconscious. Naturally, after associating with a picked class of men, he finds more common place types rather dull and tame. He may not feel above them, just isn't interested in them.

Where he fails is in not realizing that the School of Hard Knocks and Daily Life also has its value. The fellows who never took scholastic degrees have had experiences worth even his attention. They know a lot of useful things never taught by any professor. When the college graduate learns the worth of all human personality, then he begins to fit into the groove of daily work and his mental training begins to count.

KEEPING AT IT.

The Good Roads Bill just passed by Congress will give us the most important road improvement if the provisions for keeping up the roads is not strictly adhered to. Seventy-five million dollars matched by a like amount provided by the states will build considerable mileage of roads, but in three to four years these roads will have deteriorated into stripes of gravel filled with potholes if maintenance funds are not constantly expended.

A road is like any other useful article—it begins to deteriorate the moment it is put into use. Nothing wears or is faster than a public road that is left to take care of itself; only the constant replacing of the surface and an eternal fight with the elements—wind, rain and sunshine—will preserve it in any high degree of condition.

The Office of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture has demonstrated that it knows how to build good roads and how to maintain them. It has the authority to supervise the distribution and expenditure of this money and it has every opportunity to provide against highway neglect. Road maintenance is of much greater importance than is ordinarily realized. Constant and proper care will keep even a dirt road in good condition nearly all the year. No matter how thorough the construction of a stone road, maintenance is still of paramount importance. It is a form of national preparedness that has both commercial and military value.

No branch of our national improvement needs to be planned so carefully and to cover so long a period as road building and upkeep, and it is the upkeep that will count ten years later.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas in view of the loss we have sustained by the decease of our friend and associate sister, Elizabeth W. H. Allen, we, the undersigned, do hereby resolve that we will sustain by those who were nearest and dearest to her, therefore be it resolved that it is the duty of the family of the deceased to say that in regretting her removal from our midst, we mourn for one who was worthy of our respect.

Resolved, that we sincerely condole with the family of the deceased on the dispensation which Providence has afflicted them and commend them to the care of Him who orders all things for the best.

Resolved, that this testimonial of our sympathy be recorded upon the minutes of our lodge, sent to the Norway Advertiser and a copy forwarded to the family of our departed sister.

CHEESE AS A FOOD

Cheese contains all the essentials of human food, according to a pamphlet recently issued by the department of agriculture. The popular belief that cheese, even when green or unripened, is difficult of digestion, or that unripened cheese, or cheese in any stage of ripening is constipating is not justified. The milk solid in cheese are very digestible and make an almost perfect food. With the addition of rennet and the development of lactic changes take place, but these do not transform digestible solids in milk into indigestible solids in cheese. The digestive disturbances attributed to peculiarities in the cheese itself are probably due merely to over-eating or to the custom of eating cheese only at the close of the meal, when one has already had more than enough food.

Skim-milk cheese, when sold as a whole milk product, is a fraud that is a positive injury to the dairy business; but skim-milk cheese, stated and sold as such, is entitled to consideration by both producer and consumer. It is digestible and has a food value; made to have an agreeable taste it could be sold cheaply to poor people. Cottage cheese is another cheap and palatable product, much of which could be added to the dietary at a great saving in the total cost of the food. Indeed, all kinds of cheeses, even the very highly flavored and so called condimental cheeses, have a high food value. America may learn much from the old world. Many European people eat largely of cheese, either by itself, or sprinkled on vegetables, or cooked with other food. The Italians have many foods, such as macaroni, with which cheese is mixed. They have cheese grated and constantly at hand as a flavoring, which we use in pepper and salt. The Swiss eat largely of cheese, which with bread forms the greater part of the dietary of this very healthy people; and the Swiss farmers who have settled in Wisconsin continue to manifest the athletic attainments and the physical endurance of their forebears.

The sensible German consumes large quantities of the cheap, but highly flavored, skim-milk cheese. Such cheeses are wholesome and their flavors are by reason of beneficial microorganisms. The consumption of cheese by American people should be increased, for the viewpoint of both economy and its superior food value, according to The Journal of the American Medical Association. A pound of cheese has nearly the same food value as two pounds of lean meat or eggs, or the same weight of ham. Not only is it superior in food value, but also it furnishes nitrogen without the increase of uric acid in the system. For this reason it may be eaten by those inclined to gouty affections to whom meat is denied.

IN THE TRENCHES.

Among the young Englishmen who volunteered their services at the outbreak of the war were the three Barr brothers—sons of James Barr, of London, England, and nephews of the late Robert Barr and of John Barr, a member of The Detroit Free Press staff. William Arthur Barr, son of Robert, also enlisted and has been through several battles, thus far, however, escaping serious injury. James and Allen (a noted artist) have not yet been sent out of England, but Russell—barely 20 years old—went with a contingent to Gallipoli, from which the unusually interesting letter that follows was written to his father. The young private was among those recently withdrawn from the front at the last report he was stationed in Egypt.

The first night in the trenches was very strange. After the "stand to arms" at night and the sentries put aside the periscope and look over the top of the parapet. I was told off for the second hour and at the "stand easy" climbed stiffly off the shooting platform and lay down between the blankets which constituted my bed and anxiously watched the sentries peering over the parapet. Above the bullets were cracking like pistol shots. The nickel coating of the Turkish bullet is very thin and the heat generated by the friction causes the lead to expand which forces the nickel off. This is my opinion, at any rate of the supposed explosive bullet. It is the breaking of the nickel covering that causes the report.

For perhaps 10 minutes I lay there watching the silhouettes of the sentries' heads, expecting at any moment to see them shattered by one of the bullets, and then, feeling tired, I turned over and went to sleep. It seemed but a moment since I turned over when I felt a touch on my shoulder and "change sentries" whispered in my ear. I threw my blanket off and sat up. A cold look was placed upon the platform. The sentry without a word climbed down and I found myself leaning against the parapet. My head well below the level, not daring to peer over. I glanced to the right and saw the sentry next to me standing in an easy attitude with a jerk of the head above the parapet. I wondered what he thought of the bullets that whistled and cracked about his head. It seemed as though he were not aware of their presence. I felt curious to know what he was doing so intently and then a feeling of shame came over me for cowardice. I inched my head up till my eyes were all but on a level with the top of the parapet when suddenly a fan of flame shot up from the darkness, followed by a sound like a great high utter misery. Down came my head with a jerk and I was telescoped my neck. I hunched up well below the parapet for a few minutes, then again took a glance at the sentry on my right. He had not moved.

"What was that?" I asked, speaking low. The sentry turned his head toward me. "A bomb."

I again plucked up courage and cautiously raised my head. This time no bomb exploded and my head continued up and over the parapet until I again received another sound. I was about to spring over the parapet. I heard a shout out a warning when I found that the object was not the head of a Turk but part of a wooden support of barbed wire. I lowered my head again, but this time I heard a sharp bang in the bayonet.

At that moment an officer of the Royal Naval Division came into the traverse and jumped up on the platform by my side. "Are you one of the fusiliers?" "Yes sir." I took a glance at him and found he was a magnificent-looking fellow, strong of face and well built, quite six feet in height. He leaned his arms upon the top of the parapet and stood there with head and shoulders well above. I had a strong inclination to ask him to lend me a little lower, but managed to restrain myself. He then turned and talked quietly to me, explaining the position of the Turkish trenches, pointing out different objects of interest and importance as he went on. He then explained the small chance of being hit by bullets at night, and that the sentry was not such a thing as an explosive bullet, while he produced a peculiar brass pistol, a short thick-stemmed weapon, the muzzle being of the same caliber as an ordinary revolver. He placed a long cartridge in the muzzle—much the same as a sporting cartridge—and told me to have a look at the opposite trenches as he was about to fire a flame to see if any enemy working parties were about. The pistol went off with a loud bang and the flare of the shot went up into the air, dropping streamers of red sparks like a rocket. Then, having reached its highest point, burst into a flame of pale green that lighted up the whole of the No Man's land in front, disclosing the Turkish trenches, the man, the gleam of wire entanglements, the tins and other objects that were visible.

To my astonishment I found myself with my head well above the parapet and further realized that it had been up there for the last quarter of an hour. The quiet unobtrusive of the officer and his interest in the sentry had for the time being dispelled my fear. I realized, that I had actually my head up above the parapet I felt a strong inclination to move it. I resisted the desire for a time, then in a weak moment I gave way. The officer lowered my head for me. The officer himself succeeded in thinking me a coward. I had just succeeded when he pointed out something which he said might be either a man or a stump of a tree upon the enemy parapet. I didn't know what to do, but I saw that he was looking out of the corner of his eye. Evidently my head was low that dead tree on the opposite parapet. He stayed a little longer, leaning on the sandbags and although apparently looking at the enemy's lines I knew him to be furiously watching me out of the corner of his eye. Evidently my head was low that I had overcome my first "faint" he bade me good-night and continued his patrol along the traverse.

Night in the trenches is very weird. The staged night in Macbeth strikes me as being nothing compared with the darkness that overhangs the narrow strip of ground between the trenches. Here there is no need to imagine death, for it is everywhere lying amid the rank grass, singly and in clusters. Witches hover about that death-peopled ground, too. The air is filled with strange sounds. From somewhere behind comes the clear, sharp report of a machine gun and above my head the bullets hurtle toward the enemy, each one as it passes emitting a high cheerful "whit!" like the James and Allen (a noted artist) have not yet been sent out of England, but Russell—barely 20 years old—went with a contingent to Gallipoli, from which the unusually interesting letter that follows was written to his father. The young private was among those recently withdrawn from the front at the last report he was stationed in Egypt.

The young private was among those recently withdrawn from the front at the last report he was stationed in Egypt.

But it is the rifle fire that makes the night so weird. The bullets passing to and fro between the trenches make a curious tearing sound and often as I stand looking over the parapet it seems to me as though the air hangs in great strips that sway to and fro and clash against one another causing a weird melody of sounds—jangling, moaning, tearing, grating, crying and wailing.

The sound of these sounds is that of the cradle of the world, the very structure of the world entanglements (as it were) very clear from their splintered and bullet marked appearance) or the ground in front and ricochet, twist and turn. Another cause is the jagged pieces of iron and half an inch piece an inch square and half an inch thick that seared the back of a rifle as being flung back into our own trenches at each explosion. Bomb splinters are usually set off a loud harsh buzzing that gives one plenty of time to duck should they come too close.

And above all that makes the night ghastly and horrible is the insidious smell of the dead! As I have looked across the No Man's land at the clusters of the dead men—English and Turkish—the words and music of that song from "A Christmas Carol" often comes to my head: "These are Grecian ghosts who unburied remain, inglorious upon the plain."

HOW A CLUB BOY WEIGHED HIS PIG

Given an active boy interested in his pig club and determined to fulfill all the rules relating to the State-wide prize pig, it is not surprising that the boy should weigh his pig. It is, however, not available on which to weigh his pig? One of the requirements of the club is that the weight of the pig at the start and at the finish of the contest must be taken, and the weight at the end of each month is to be taken. A Massachusetts pig-club boy solved the problem and weighed his pig as required, although the only scales at hand were small, with a capacity of a few pounds, used by his mother for her household work. His example should stimulate other club boys who have problems to solve.

After taking stock this boy found that he had a hog crate, a strong box, some chains, a high board fence, a long pole, and the small scales as material to be used in weighing his pig. He marked the middle point of the long pole and placed it over the fence. To one end he attached the crate and to the other end the box was fastened by means of the chains. Sand sufficient to balance the crate was placed in the box. The boy then gathered a quantity of small cobbles, stones, dropping them near the box. By placing a few grains of corn in the crate and using other grains of corn as bait, the pig was enticed into the crate. The door was closed and the pig was ready for the weighing. By putting the small cobbles into the box until the crate balanced once more, the boy learned the weight of his pig in terms of stone. Now these stones were small, as already stated, in order that no stone would be too heavy to hold when the scales were weighed and the total of the weightings gave the boy with fair accuracy the weight of his pig in pounds. His problem was solved in this satisfactory manner. It is used this arrangement during the whole contest. As a few he was able to determine not only the weight of his pig but also the average daily gain of his pig by months and for the contest as a whole. Although his pig did not possess the merit to be a winner in the State contest, the boy received honorable mention for his good work.

The Need of a Rest-Day.

Scientific experiments recently made at Harvard University show that a man who works seven days a week thereby lowers his efficiency. The results were attained by experiments to determine whether an electric shock that the subjects could detect at the best following a day of rest on Sunday, and became dulled by fatigue on the day of the week. The common sense of the fact has long held that a weekly day of rest is a necessity for health. This needs no reinforcement from scientific experiment. Yet such a test as referred to above has been made as demonstrating beyond question that common observation is correct.

There are people who go to church on Sunday, and then kick off on their return the confessional has not delivered at their door a newly packed freezer of ice cream for dinner. Many people become impatient if public conveniences and other services do not continue as usual. They get that they are asking an army of labor to forego their Sunday, which is doubly restorative if observed on the general rest day.

Of course in our modern complex civilization a certain amount of Sunday work is inevitable. But railroads and other public services should be careful to see that every man gets his day off through the week. Probably more trains are run on Sundays than on any other day of the week. It is a serious matter to see working people off from the stimulating experiences of church worship, and it ought not to be done for frivolous reasons.

Engineering firms that do construction jobs often work seven days a week. They give the excuse that they are behind on contract. It sometimes looks as if they thought it more profitable to keep plant equipment and workers busy without letting them go home. But men can work seven days a week for a length of time and turn out a profitable product or retain good health.—Sainford Tribune.

DON'T BE ASHAMED TO SALUTE THE FLAG

When you see the Stars and Stripes displayed, son, stand up and take off your hat!

Somebody may titter. It is in our Puritanical blood to deride all expression of noble sentiment. You may blaspheme in the street, and stagger drunken in public places, and the bystanders will not pay much attention to you, but if you should get down on your knees in the street and pray to Almighty God or if you should stand bareheaded while a company of old soldiers march by with their Flag to the breeze some people will think you are showing off.

But don't you mind! When Old Glory comes along salute, and let them think what they please. When you hear the band play The Star Spangled Banner, while you are in a restaurant or hotel dining room, get up, even if you rise alone; stand there and don't be ashamed of it, either!

For all the signs and symbols since the world began there is never another so full of meaning as the Flag of this Country. That piece of red, white and blue bunting means 5000 years of struggle upward. It is the full-blown flower of ages of fighting for liberty. It is the century plant of human hope in bloom.

It means the answered prayer of generations of slaves, of the helots of Greece, of the human chattels of Rome, of the vassals of feudalism of the serfs of Russia, of the blacks of America, of all who, whipped and cursed, have crawled from the cradle to the grave through all time. Your Flag stands for humanity, for an equal opportunity to all the sons of men. Of course, we haven't arrived yet at the goal; there are many injustices as yet among us, many senseless and cruel customs of the past still clinging to us, but the only hope of righting the wrongs of men lies in the feeling produced in our bosoms by the sight of that Flag.

It stands for no race. It is not like the English, French or German flag. It stands for men, men of any blood who will come and live with us under its protection. It is the only banner that means mankind.

It stands for the only great Nation on earth free from the curse and burden of militarism and devoted to the arts of peace.

It means the richest, happiest, youngest people on the globe. Other flags mark a glorious past, this Flag a glorious future. It is not so much the Flag of our fathers as it is the Flag of our children, and of all children's children yet unborn. It is the Flag of the "Good Time Coming." It is not the flag of our king, it is the Flag of yourself and of all your neighbors.

It has a power concealed in its folds and scatters abroad an influence from its flutterings. That power and influence mean that in due time, slowly and by force of law, yet surely as the footsteps of God, the last ancient fraud shall be smitten, the last unearned privilege removed, the last irregularity set right, the last man shall have a place to work and a living wage, the last woman shall have all her rights of person and of citizenship, and the last and least of children shall be sheltered and trained and equipped by the sovereign state, and so have their right to live.

Don't be ashamed when your throat chokes and the tears come, as you see it flying from the mast and a ship of Gibraltor or the port of Singapore. You will never have a worthier emotion. That Flag is the cream of all religions, the concentrated essence of the best impulses of the human race; reverence it as you would reverence the signature of the Deity.

By hundreds and by thousands the wretched victims of old-world caste are streaming westward, seeking here the thing that Flag stands for—opportunity. It stands for the quick against the dead, the youth of the world against its senility.

It stands for the open door of ambition against the closed door of caste.

It stands for the stability of vigorous growth, against the fixedness of hoary institutions.

It waves defiance at all ghosts, they that have for long intimidated men, the ghost of monarchy, the ghost of war, the ghost of aristocracy, the ghost of ecclesiastical rule; all they that still lay shadowy hands upon the life of Europe and Asia.

Banks Buying Heifers.

Boys and girls in Illinois should have greater opportunity to secure well bred dairy heifers, is the belief of Commissioner Matthews of the State food department. But he does not stop at believing. The calves are already going out to the boys and girls. Bankers of the state have been enlisted and are loaning money at 8 per cent to worthy boys and girls to buy the heifers, asking only as security an agreement signed by parent or guardian to act as sponsor for the youngster who takes a calf. The heifers will be kept a year and then will be sold at public auction, the difference between purchase price plus interest to go to the youngsters; or the heifers will be kept by those who receive them on payment of the purchase price plus interest. Doubtless many good heifers will thus be placed in communities that would not otherwise have secured them under any other plan. To that extent, and because the children will become interested in better stock, the plan is laudable. Some may say they don't see how work if this sort comes under the duties of the state food department, but that point is of minor importance so long as results are desirable.—Farmers' Review, Chicago.

Here's a farm credit idea that is getting results. If applied to pigs and sheep, as well as heifers, in Maine it might do much to encourage some of the State's "best blood" to stay on the farm and produce blooded stock.

Passing of the Rural Schools.

The rural schoolhouse is doomed. Like the dash churn and spinning wheel it will soon be a thing of the past. Of the day when so many schoolhouses in Norway only a few are used for school purposes.

It is cheaper to convey at public expense the small number of pupils in the district than to hold a school in the district. This condition is growing each year. Where there were 20 pupils 20 years ago there is now two to five in the district and the school edifice is silent for the twelve months.

The Annual Reunion of the 32nd Maine Regimental Association, as voted at the meeting last year, will be held at Rumford on Sunday, August 13th, and have decided upon Friday, August 18th, as the date.

DO YOU SUFFER FROM BACKACHE?

When your kidneys are weak and torpid they do not properly perform their functions; your back aches and you do not feel like doing much of anything. You are likely to be despondent and to borrow trouble, just as if you hadn't enough already. Don't be a victim any longer. The old reliable medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, gives strength and tone to the kidneys and builds up the whole system. Get it today.

NATIONAL PAY-UP WEEK AN ORGANIZED MOVEMENT TO BRING PROSPERITY

"The word prosperity is a magic word to most people just as other magic words are such, because a vast majority of people do not understand its meaning. The word prosperity has been a political watchword and catch word for generations. Great contests have been waged around it because of its magic influence over the popular mind."

But the people of this country are realizing more and more that prosperity is not a thing to be had by resolution, or by decree not altogether by legislation, but it comes through action of the people in keeping moving the medium of prosperity, which is our money.

We are a credit people. This nation is possibly the greatest credit nation on the face of the earth. The great bulk of our business is done on credit. We credit one another; the manufacturer credits the merchant; the merchant credits his customer; the professional man credits his customers and client; and so on through every one of our whole business institutions, we find credit the one outstanding characteristic.

Credit is a great thing, too, but like other good things it is sometimes abused, and when it is abused or misused it becomes a detriment rather than a factor in upbuilding the business of a city, town or community.

The man who uses credit judiciously in his business is an asset to his community, but the man who misuses his credit to the detriment to the general business welfare of his community, and yet there are a great many people who misuse their credit unintentionally but with bad effect nevertheless.

We, as a people and a nation are so big, rich and prosperous that we have failed in our development to consider some very essential things, and the matter of credit is one of them. But as our business grows in volume, and the matter of credit is coming more and more to be recognized as a tangible asset, it being found necessary to give the matter of credit and the payment of accounts due the most careful consideration; and a week has been set aside to be known as National Pay-Up Week, during which time people throughout the country are asked to pay their individual debts so far as possible and in this way strengthen the prosperity of the entire country.

This extraordinary and laudable movement is being conducted by the association of business men that is unique in character. The National Association of Merchants Trade Journal Readers is, as the name might suggest, a national association of business men. These men are individually interested in the general prosperity of their respective cities and communities, and as these men are in business in practically every town and city of any consequence in this entire country, this movement to promote the payment of debts during the one week of October 22 to 28th inclusive, will be at once a national and local, and bring such every man and woman in the entire country should be interested in it.

National Pay-Up Week is not a movement to promote greater buying, but it is a movement to promote more systematic payment of debts. The person who pays his debts during National Pay-Up Week is not necessarily buying more goods, but is simply paying for goods that have been purchased; and not only business men, but everyone else—the minister, the teacher, the lawyer, the doctor, the farmer, the laborer, are all interested either directly or indirectly in this great nation-wide movement.

Every professional man has an interest in the material prosperity of those about him because he is serving them. Every minister in every church of his people, and indeed those in other churches, and those of the community who belong to no church, because it requires money to conduct the activities of a church, and the teacher is interested, too, because it requires money to finance the educational institutions of this country. And anything that will cause the people of a town and community to pay their debts will help every business, every institution and every individual in that community.

Care of Kid Gloves.

It is a good plan to keep kid gloves in oil paper in a tin box. White and light colored gloves can be cleaned on the hands with naphtha until they are perfectly dry. Put on one glove and rub with a clean piece of flannel dipped in naphtha. Wipe it all over and then rub nearly dry with a clean piece of flannel. Do the other glove in the same manner and allow them to remain on the hands until thoroughly dry. Put on a little talcum powder and hang in a window until the gloves are dry.

Be very careful not to clean gloves with naphtha in a room where there is a light or a fire.

Light-colored suedes may be washed with naphtha and rubbed over with oil and dried on the hands, using soap suds, and then use a clean piece of flannel to dry. White and yellow chambray gloves can be washed in warm suds, first rubbing the soiled with magnesia. Always turn them on the wrong side to dry. A little olive oil added to the rinsing water improves them wonderfully.

The Oxford County Association of the Eastern Star held their annual picnic at Bethel in Professor Chapman's grove, Thursday, August 3. Bethel Chapter furnished baked beans and coffee and everyone is expected to bring their own lunch, knife, fork, spoon and drinking cup. Bethel held in attendance during the afternoon.

READ WHAT LOCAL PEOPLE SAY

I want to say for the benefit of those that suffer with rheumatism, that for more than 20 years I suffered agony with rheumatism. I had several doctors and only got slight relief. In April, 1909, I was that in bed with it and had been for some time when the Mountain Herb man called and persuaded me to try the Mountain Herb Treatment. I had no faith but I am glad I did, for it cured me and I have worked ever since. I gladly recommend this treatment for it has been 7 years and I feel fine now. E. L. CUMMINGS, South Paris, Me., Route 2.

In February, 1913, I had rheumatic fever and let me in bad shape. My shoulders were stiff and hands swollen. I was obliged to walk with two canes and was at first helpless. I could not feed myself. It was recommended to me by Will Lumsden of this place, who had been cured. The Mountain Herb Treatment was sent me and I only took 6 bottles. It has cured me since. Mrs. John M. THE YEAR WITHOUT A SUMMER.

Much has been said about the weather conditions of the year 1816, just 100 years ago, and many have compared with our present year that the following about that famous season when snow and ice were found in June, July and August.

The year 1816 was known throughout the United States and Europe as the coldest ever experienced by any person then living. There are persons in northern New York who have been in the habit of keeping diaries for years, and it is from the pages of an old diary begun in 1810 kept up until 1816, that the following information regarding this year without a summer has been taken:

January was so mild that most persons allowed their fires to go out and did not burn wood except for cooking. There were a few cool days, but they were few. Most of the time the air was warm and springlike. February was not cold. Some days were colder than any in January, but the weather was about the same. March, from the 1st to the 6th, was inclined to be windy. It came in like a blizzard and went out like a very innocent sheep.

April came in warm, but as the days grew on the weather became colder and by the first of May there was a temperature like that of winter, with plenty of snow and ice. In May the young buds were frozen dead, ice formed half an inch thick on ponds and rivers, corn was killed and the cornfields were planted again and again until it became too late to raise a crop. By the last of May in this climate the trees are usually in leaf and birds and flowers are plentiful. When the last of May arrived in 1816 everything had been killed by the cold.

June was the coldest month of roses ever experienced in this latitude. Frost and ice were as common as buttercups usually are. Almost every green thing was killed; all fruit was destroyed. Snow fell 10 inches deep in Vermont. There was a seven-inch fall in the interior of New York state and the same in Massachusetts. There were only a few moderately warm days. Everybody looked, longed and waited for warm weather, but warm weather did not come.

It was also dry; very little rain fell. All summer long the wind blew steadily from the north in blasts, laden with snow and ice. Mothers knit socks of double thickness for their children and made thick mittens. Planning and shivering were done together, and the farmers who worked out their taxes on the country roads were overcoats and mittens.

On June 17 there was a heavy fall of snow. A Vermont farmer sent a flock of sheep to pasture on June 16. The morning of the 17th dawned with the thermometer below freezing point. About 9 o'clock in the morning the owner of the sheep started to look for his flock. Before leaving home he turned to his wife and said, jokingly: "Better start the neighbors soon; it's the middle of June and I may get lost in the snow."

An hour after he had left home a terrible snowstorm came up. The snow fell thick and fast, and as there was so much wind the fleecy masses piled in great drifts along the windward side of the fences and overbuildings. Night came and the farmer had not been heard of.

His wife became frightened and alarmed the neighborhood. All the neighbors joined the searching party. On the third day they found him. He was lying in a hollow on the side hill with both feet frozen; he was half-covered with snow, but alive. Most of the sheep were lost.

A farmer near Tewksbury, Vt., owned a large field of corn. He built fires. Nearly every night he and his men watched that the corn did not freeze. The farmer was rewarded for his tireless labors by having the only crop of corn in the region.

July came in with snow and ice. On the fourth of July ice was as thick as window glass formed throughout New England. New York and in some parts of the state of Pennsylvania. Indian corn, which, in some parts of the east, had struggled through May and June, gave up, froze and died.

To the surprise of everybody, August proved the worst month of all. Almost every green thing in this country and Europe was blasted with frost. Snow fell at Barnet, 30 miles from London, England, on August 30. Newspapers received from England, stated that 1816 would be remembered by the existing generation as the year which there would be no summer. Very little corn ripened in New England. There was a great privation, and thousands of persons would have perished in this country had it not been for the abundance of fish and wild game.—Camden Herald.

ELECTRICAL INSTRUCTIONS FOR DEAF

William E. Shaw, a deaf and dumb inventor who contrived for the benefit of his fellow unfortunate deaf and dumb, ingenious devices, was formerly a resident of Portland for about 10 years and for three years a student at the Maine School for the Deaf. Mr. Shaw is now making a tour to encourage electrical instruction in the schools for the deaf. Mr. Shaw, who is connected with the electrical department in the laboratory of Thomas A. Edison at West Orange, N. J., and who is the inventor of about 50 devices for the deaf and dumb, including a "talkless telephone," a "pill-shake" alarm clock and a bell-less door bell, believes that the electrical field offers a great opportunity for the deaf and dumb, that in electrical engineering they would find employment more congenial and also more lucrative than any they are now able to obtain. Mr. Shaw thinks there should be a technical institute for the deaf and dumb in connection with the Maine School for the Deaf.

The devices which Mr. Shaw has invented for the benefit of the deaf and dumb are of many kinds. One of the most important is a system of lights which stand for letters and flash on and off, spelling out words. The alarm clock shakes the pillow, effectually preventing sleep. The "door bell" drops a weight, which conveys vibrations through the building to the residents of the house, or where the person to be benefited has a slight sense of hearing it explodes a cap.

Mr. Shaw has received many letters from the deaf in the United States asking for employment in electrical factories and has helped some to secure it. These have found employment in electrical plants more to their liking than their former employments.

A possession which he prizes very much is an autographed picture of Mr. Edison which he has placed in his private laboratory at home as an evidence of his admiration of Mr. Edison for his greatness and the service he has rendered to the world. He has also letters of encouragement from Alexander Graham Bell and the late Bishop Phillips Brooks.

THE RIGHT ISLE BUT THE WRONG SEAT

A laughable incident occurred at one of the recent Chautauque meetings. A well known young man attended with a young lady, and during intermission the young man was seated at the end, left for a few minutes and on his return leisurely strolled down the aisle not paying strict attention where he was going, and walked up to a seat beside a lady much his senior, in which were two ladies' hats.

He picked up the hats and nearly seated himself, when looking down into the lady's face, saw his mistake and throwing the hats into the seat, fled. His young lady, perceiving the mistake he was about to make, frantically waved her arms, but to no effect. Alas! it was too late. The expression on the face of the "wrong lady" as well as the "right lady" was one of decided interest to all who saw it.

We presume the young lady is wondering if her escort had forgotten "which one" he went with.

JEERING AT MAINE

The ease with which the liquor interests find access to the press of the United States, speaking generally, when they wish to say something calculated to bring reproach upon the state of Maine, is remarkable. No remarkable still is the freedom with which these interests seem to be able to use for this purpose the columns of newspapers of all the other New England states. The motive, of course, is plain; especially when it is remembered that Maine was not only the first state of the Union to enact a prohibition law, but that it stood alone among the sisterhood in this respect for twenty-six long years. Maine adopted its first prohibition law in 1846. This was replaced in 1851 by a more stringent measure. What came to be known as the "Maine law" was adopted by Vermont in 1852, and by New Hampshire in 1855, but neither stuck to it. Prohibition laws were enacted by Connecticut in 1854 and by New York in 1855 but neither remained steadfast. Prohibition laws were enacted in early days by Delaware, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Michigan, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, Kansas and Ohio, but were repealed after a longer or shorter trial. The existing law in Maine dates from 1854. As a matter of fact, the conviction of the great majority of the people of Maine on the liquor question has not wavered an instant since 1851. Although deserted by its neighbors, Maine has kept the prohibition flag flying as bravely as any state for five years. Not until 1880 was it joined permanently by Kansas.

In the eyes of the liquor interests, Maine has stood through all these years as a bad example. And, besides, these interests have been, and are to this day, greatly shocked because Maine has never been able entirely to extirpate the liquor evil. The publicity departments of the brewers' and distillers' associations have discovered from time to time that, notwithstanding the prohibitory legislation, it has been possible for people especially bent upon that purpose to ship liquor to Maine, and for other people especially employed for that purpose to purchase it in out-of-the-way places in Maine. The liquor interests have been very watchful over Maine's moral and political particular, and active in their reports to the press.

There has been a great deal of secret shipping, a great deal of secret selling, a great deal of bribery and corruption, and the liquor interests have been the first to obtain and make public the facts. The newspapers open to the publication of such facts as the liquor interests have cared to make public have found the reports to be invariably correct, so far as they have gone. The liquor interests could be depended on implicitly not to fail to discover a violation of the law. They were able, it seems, to tell in advance about these violations. They seemed to know, that is, where the next violation would occur, and they enabled them to have a reporter on the spot.

They were also enabled to prepare for the press timely comments upon the discovery of violations, it being the aim of the liquor dealers to establish at once the inutility as well as the utter absurdity of the prohibition law. Included in the comment were usually remarks to the effect that people would, by some means or other, obtain liquor despite every effort of the state to prevent it, as proved by cases such, for instance, as what occurred in 1810 at that remote town, or to the effect that the officers of the law were mere children in the hands of the lawbreakers; or to the effect that the officers of the law could be bribed not to see what was going on; or to the effect that the so-called enforcement of the law was a "joke." They became fond of the word "joke," and they use it frequently in their press even to the present day. "Prohibition in Maine," they say, "is a joke." "Everybody in Maine," they say, "regards prohibition as a joke." "Maine itself is a joke. It is a joke to make Maine seriously. To jeer at Maine is an excellent joke. Strange that in the year anno Domini 1916, with the whole nation on the verge of going over to the main line, where the law is a real joke comes in—Christian Science Monitor.

HOGS ON PASTURE.

Pork Production Cost Reduced—Supplemented Grain Ration Desirable—Composition of Pasture Forage.

The cost of pork is reduced materially by the use of pasture and forage crops, and it is desirable to feed grain or other concentrated feed in addition. In some sections of the country where pastures are luxuriant, mature hogs are maintained in an apparently satisfactory condition on pasture alone. This practice should not be followed, however, in the case of young growing pigs, because they will become thin in flesh and stunted if compelled to live on pasture alone.

Hog raisers differ widely regarding the quantity of grain that should be fed to hogs while on pasture. Some feeders give them all the grain they want. Others feed a ration equal to about 2 to 3 percent of the live weight of the hog. Still others will allow pigs to run on pasture and feed them a 1 percent grain ration. There is no fixed rule governing the supplemental grain ration which should be fed in connection with forage. The amount of grain fed depends upon the kind of pasture used, the price of grain and the market.

Pasture forage has a variable composition. Alfalfa, clover, vetch, and peas furnish feed much richer in protein than most other crops. Where hogs are fed on leguminous pasture they require less concentrated feed than when grazing upon non-leguminous pasture such as timothy, orchard grass, Bermuda or bluegrass. In the early stages of growth the cereals may be classed as heterogeneous forages. A farmer may have more hogs than his pasture will accommodate. When this is the case, the pasture will last longer if a full grain ration is fed. The more grain a hog consumes, the less forage he will eat.

When grain is high, it is rather expensive to feed a supplemental grain ration. At such times there is a great temptation to place the hogs upon pasture alone. This practice will hardly ever pay, for it generally takes more grain and more time to finish off the hogs than if they had been fed a liberal ration while on pasture.

The amount of grain used will also depend upon the length of time the feeder has in which to fit the hogs for market. Hogs that are marketed from 10 to 12 months are usually kept maintained on pasture alone during the grazing season. If any grain is given at all it is very light. In this way the greater percentage of growth is made from the cheaply grown forage. Where rapid finishing is desired, the liberal use of grain is important.

HAMLIN GARLAND, NOVELIST

Hamlin Garland, novelist, poet, publicist, who brought to this year's graduating class of the University of Maine what he termed the message of those who left the state two generations ago to be pioneers in the west, is one of the most distinctive and interesting figures in modern American literature.

"My father, Richard H. Garland," he said in his address, "was born in Oxford county, Maine and went to school in Greenwood Upper City. He always planned to return to the vicinity of Bethel and see his old home, and again climb Overset mountain, but he never did. He was a true pioneer, and he may have been superstitious about taking the back trail. When he died at the age of 84 he still carried in his heart a deep affection for the State of Maine, and he still had a peculiarly of exultation and certain phrases that made him regarded by his companions in the west as Yankee. And he was proud of it. And in these days of the hyphen I am glad that the Robinsons, the Garlands and the Hamlins have a heritage deeply buried in the soil of New England, and belong to those who have fought for the flag."

Hamlin Garland was born in 1860 on a farm near the present site of West Salem Wisconsin, and his father's loyalty to the home of the old expression in the name he chose for his son; the Hamlin was after Hannibal Hamlin. The son has been true to these fine traditions—a worthy namesake of one of Maine's great sons.

At heart he has always been a pioneer—a man imbued with the same fine spirit that characterized the Maine men of two or three generations ago who threw themselves into the struggle that went to the making of the great west, or sailed forth in Maine-built ships to play a glorious part in the commerce of the world. He has pioneered some himself—he once settled on a claim—but he has done his best work in preserving for us in literature the spirit of the pioneers.

In gathering the material for his stories he has explored most of our western mountain ranges, either alone or with a single companion, and in following the disappearing pioneer and adventurer has even gone overland to the Yukona six months' trip that formed the basis of his book, On the Trail of the Gold Seekers. He struck the note that has characterized most of his writing when he said in his address at the University of Maine: "The most distinctive figure in America in all the centuries of colonization has been the man with the rifle in the hollow of his arm, the lone settler, the axeman, who led his family into the wilderness, cleared a spot for his corn and hewed out the logs for his cabin, acting as the vanguard of civilization, with the sunset for his guide." Mr. Garland has prepared for us the spirit of that man in his writings—told us of him with more understanding and insight than has perhaps any other American man of letters.

The thing that strikes one first about Hamlin Garland is the fact that he is an outdoor man—a man who finds his keenest joy in the open—in the savor of the wood smoke from a camp-fire, in sleeping under the stars and waking to watch the dawn come, and the mountains take on color, and the purple valleys lighten with the day. These things green into his conversation within a very few minutes after he begins to talk with one, because they are so much in his heart and his thoughts that they will out. It doesn't take long to find out that the great outdoors has given him inspiration and a clearer spiritual vision.

The last few winters Mr. Garland spent in New York—not because he liked it, but because the necessary business side of his literary career demanded that he be there for part of the year. He expressed himself very frankly in regard to New York in a recent interview with Joyce Kilmer in the New York Times and what he had to say was not complimentary to our modern Babylon as a literary center or the cradle for young writers.

When Mr. Kilmer asked him what was the matter with American literature, Mr. Garland unhesitatingly answered: "New York and its crowds," and then went on to show why in a very lucid manner. "Chief of my reasons was the fact that New York puts a premium on the money side of a writer's success. 'Certainly money success is the openly expressed ideal of the most of our industrious and brilliant young authors,' said Mr. Garland. 'The typical young sensationist of our time, as I meet him, is in very truth in pursuit of an automobile and a town house. He is not seeking to express himself and to 'put something over' on an editor or publisher.'

"I like the young men personally. I mix with them at the club. They are friends of mine, and yet I can't help feeling that they're all victims of the New York idea. As Professor Pattee has said, they manufacture short stories and novels as they might manufacture automobiles or coffee pots. They even believe in affiliating with the labor unions."

After a discussion of the modern magazine, which Mr. Garland feels is little more than an advertising bulletin with a little snappy literature sandwiched in between, he returned to the subject of mind. "If I didn't realize that there is after all no such thing as decay, or change," he said, "I should feel with Professor Pattee that we were living in the most disheartening period of American literature." But he added later, "The intellectual and spiritual ideals of our citizens will eventually change for the better, even in New York. Meanwhile the writer must permit himself time to think for himself, and keep desire for money subordinate to his desire to express something vital and individual. And to do this he must avoid the city and rise above the cynical, sensual metropolitan ideal."

Mr. Garland has been true to this belief. By avoiding the city, or at least the dominating half of the city, he has maintained a certain simplicity—the genuineness that is characteristic of the true woodsman. By keeping out of the modern welter of commercialism, he has maintained the idea that the financial return is the one end of writing. He belongs to that too small group whose members write not because they can, but because they must.

Personally to more delightful man of letters is said to be found in America today than Mr. Garland. His deep-set gray eyes have a keen, flashing intensity, yet are kind and warm, and house a lurking smile even in his most serious moments. His features are the thoroughly-chiseled features of our passing American type—the heritage of the old stock that made America what she is. His thick, gray hair gives to his fine head a distinguished, leonine look. The outward man is an excellent expression of the inward one. In conversation he is even more interesting than in his public speeches, and what he says is marked by an intensity that bespeaks conviction. He has kept the vivid interest in what goes on about him. In men and women, and in the world of nature, that most of us lose with youth.

One might write, "Hamlin Garland, American," and characterize the man in person and in ideals. He has labored to express the best of the Americanism of the "Middle Border." In what he has written, and he stands today for American ideals in life, literature and art.

WEST SUMNER

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Chandler recently received a very pleasant visit from Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Tuell of Watertown, Mass. Thursday a postal shower was given Arabine Tibbets, who is at the C. M. G. hospital for an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. Charles Newell, who has been visiting friends and relatives here the past week, returned to her home in South Paris, Saturday.

The first of a series of services was held in the Universalist church, July 28, Rev. C. G. Miller of South Paris, preacher. Services will open each Sunday at 10:45 a. m.

Mrs. Fannie Adams recently received a delightful call from friends from New York, who are spending the summer in Maine.

Much interest is being displayed in an apple tree belonging to W. E. Lathrop, there being among the apples several clusters of beautiful blossoms.

A dance under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held in the vestry on Friday evening, August 4th. Ice cream will be on sale.

An auto party consisting of Mrs. Ashman and two daughters, Deaconess Humphreys and Mrs. Brown, took an auto trip to South Paris one day last week, returning the same day.

Mrs. James Bosworth is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Barrows.

Mr. and Mrs. Winslow Bisbee have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Alton Bisbee of Dorchester, Mass., for a few days.

Miss Porter has finished work for Mrs. Sydney Brown and returned to her home in West Paris.

W. E. Doble of Buffalo, N. Y., is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Doble.

Little Eva Bibbee has returned from Milton, where she has been visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Redding, for several weeks.

Monday, Dr. Eugene Andrews of Brunswick, was in town.

The annual meeting of the Oxford Co. Telephone Co. was held in the vestry, July 31st, with a large attendance. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Clerk—Washington Head.
Treasurer—Edith E. Bradford.

Directors—F. A. Dunham, O. S. Dudley, A. B. Jones, Olander Irish, B. E. Gerrish, Washington Head, S. G. Barrett.

WEST BROWNFIELD.

Wesley Carpenter is working for Charles Dennett through haying.

Several from here went to Porter, Sunday to the Old Home Day exercises.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Chamberlain and son, Earl and Arthur Cole made an auto trip Sunday to Portland and Old Orchard.

Mrs. Lewis Leavitt spent Sunday night and Monday with Mrs. William Dennett at East Brownfield.

J. F. Robinson of Glen, N. H., was through the place on business, Thursday.

Ruth Leavitt was a recent visitor at Mark Snow's, Snowville, N. H.

OWNED AND RENTED HOMES

A little group of men who have dealt considerably in real estate in a number of cities, got to comparing experiences the other day. They were discussing the question whether more or less people own their homes than formerly. It was the final consensus that there are fewer houses now owned by the occupants than formerly.

Workmen nowadays cherish tenaciousness of their freedom of movement. If they hear of a better place they want to get out of the footloose to pull up and go. They do not work as long in one place as formerly. The man who has stuck to one job 10 years is a member of the Old Guard, a conspicuous figure. There is an unwillingness to tie up money in any one place.

As a result it was the feeling that there is an increasing contrast between the various sections of growing towns. The better houses are very nicely kept up. People settle down in them in a permanent way. They plant shrubbery and cultivate flowers and fertilize and decorate their lawns with an eye to the future. Meanwhile in the less costly homes, the tenants are more mobile. They hate to do any permanent grading or planting on their landlord's real estate. They may be far away another year, and other tenants would reap the advantage of their labor. Let the landlord do it, is their view. Usually the landlord does not see how beautification will improve his rent. All of which tends to create residence districts without beauty, plain and bare. Also the man in a rented house is less likely to save. A mortgage is a constant incentive to thrift. But the renter feels independent, and is apt to be indifferent to bank account. It is not easy to build up a substantial and beautiful home on the basis of the modern restless population.

Bullets Self-Sterilized.

Surprise is often expressed at the official statement that an enormous percentage—sometimes placed as high as 90—of wounded men go back to the firing line after hospital treatment; but there are many reasons for this.

One is, of course, that a great number of the men recorded as wounded suffer from very slight mishaps, and another is to be found in the character of the modern bullet and rifle. The old leaden bullet was a fearsome thing, expanding on impact, and making the most terrible wounds.

The modern missile is but half its diameter, hard and penetrating, with a clean cut, which in the case of flesh, almost closes at once. But what makes the bullet would less dangerous that it was under old conditions is the fact that it has become sterilized in the operation of being discharged.

It leaves the rifle muzzle at the rate of some 2,000 feet a second, and is revolving at the rate of about 2,500; at the same time its temperature is raised to a high point, and it is beautifully polished, all microbes and germs having been both killed and polished off.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

NORWAY AND VICINITY.

War Widows Refuse to Work.
"No, I'm not working, I was told I was the only married woman that did work and that there was no need of my working, and I have quit." This was the conversation made by a war-widow when asked by the writer if she could go to Round Pond and assist Mrs. A. P. Chandler, wife of the care taker, who on account of lameness is unable to get about the house. Good pay was offered and it is an easy job in agreeable surroundings, but she preferred ease and idleness and the accepting of charity from friends and neighbors, town and state, while her husband is on the Texas border. She has worked out all her married life, except a few weeks when a baby was born but she has quit. Come pass the hat round for contribution. Clarence M. Smith and Thad Cross heard the conversation.

Road Problem No Joke.
Major Shorey of Bridgton endeavoring to get the voters to come out to a special meeting to raise money and discuss the road problem says:
"The meeting should not be treated as a joke—it's more in the nature of a tragedy."
This can equally as well apply to Norway where $20,000.00 is being expended, and at a recent special town meeting regarding it, less than fifty voters were present.

Only Difference is Clothes and Tackle.
George Johnson, 8 years old, lives in A. D. Parks' Oxford Park Addition, caught an eleven inch bass Saturday.
The boy was bare footed and bare headed, wore a ragged shirt and overalls and with an alder pole and twine string caught the fish which he proudly carried on a spear of grass through Main street for public inspection.
He was as much pleased as the well groomed and expensively accoutered city chap whom we see daily coming from the lake.
There was no difference.
Fish catching operates the same with the rich and the poor.

The C. B. Cummings & Sons' office building on Bridge street will be a one story building 40x26 feet and will be made with a vault enclosed. Charles Evans will do the carpenter work and will commence as soon as the cement and rock foundation is completed which is being put in by T. L. Heath and crew in a very substantial manner.

Hobart Ames of Auburn visited relatives in town this week.

Charles Wentzel and family have moved into the Sawyer house on Danforth street.

Mrs. Lizzie Robbins left Sunday for Hartford where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. Ed Irish.

REMAINS SENT HOME.

Harry S. Lasselle writes:—Enclosed is a clipping from the "Laredo Daily Times" of July 25, which gives a correct account of what took place after Harding's body was received here at Laredo. The body of Private Reuben A. Harding of Co. D, Second Maine Infantry Regiment, who was drowned at San Ignacio on Saturday afternoon, was brought here last night on a motor truck accompanied by several of the Maine boys and taken to the Convery Undertaking Parlor. Later the body was prepared for shipment and was sent this afternoon to the home of deceased in Canton, Me.

One of the Maine soldiers accompanying the remains to Laredo last night stated to the Times reporter that Harding had evidently been seized with cramps while in the water, as he disappeared from view very quickly and never again came to the surface. Despite the fact that search for the body was immediately begun it was not recovered until yesterday morning at about two miles down river from where the drowning occurred, and it was then in very shallow water. The drowning of their comrade caused a great shock to the other Maine boys who were bathing in the Rio Grande at the time.

One of the saddest and most impressive military funerals ever held in Laredo, resulted when the remains of Private Harding were escorted to the railroad station. At 11 o'clock this forenoon the regimental staff of the Second Maine Infantry Regiment, headed by the Second Maine (University of Maine) Band, and followed by Colonel Hume and staff and the machine gun platoon of the regiment, and also a firing squad, arrived at the Convery Undertaking Parlor, the band playing a funeral dirge as the procession wended its way from the Maine camp to the undertaking parlor. Arriving at the Convery establishment the procession halted and awaited the arrival of a caisson from the Ninth Infantry Camp.

About noon the caisson received the box and coffin containing the remains of Private Harding and began its march to the railroad station, the remains being accompanied by a squad of men from the company to which the deceased belonged, the regimental commander and staff and the regimental band, the latter being at the head of the procession and playing "Nearer My God to Thee." The machine gun company and firing squad also were in line.

Many tear-stained eyes watched that procession—many thought of the mother at home who had sent her son to the front to fight for his country and flag and who now awaited the coming of the remains of him who had met with a sad fate by drowning. In respect and reverence to the volunteer was uppermost in the minds of those who saw the regiment and the men of the command paying tribute to the private who had answered the last call—though same was not where bullets whizzed, where cannon balls ricocheted or where blood was spilled on the altar of his country—but who met death while seemingly enjoying the pleasure of a bath in the serene Rio Grande.

At the depot there were tear-stained eyes among the regimental officers, among the company officers—among the privates who composed the machine gun platoon and the firing squad who accompanied the remains of their comrade to the depot, there to begin the sad homeward journey. At the depot the caisson was placed aboard the train, while standing nearby were Maine militiamen with bowed heads, while the band again played that sad and touching hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee." And the remains were sent on their way to Canton, Maine, there to be received by the mother, father and friends of Private Harding and consigned to their last resting place in Mother Earth. Peace to his ashes.

The Veranda Club.

July meeting of the Veranda Club met at the home of Mrs. Vera Kilgore where a very pleasant evening was spent. After the business meeting the hostess served ice cream, cake and saltines.

Tuesday evening, July 25, the Veranda Club met at the home of Mrs. Marguerite Dyer, Fair street and gave her a pound party which was a great surprise to her. After the excitement of looking over the bountiful supply all were invited to the living room where a short business meeting was held, after which a lunch of fancy cookies, marshmallows and lemonade was served by the members of the club.

At this meeting the president appointed the committees for the annual fair: Candy table—Maggie Libby, chairman; Cassie Stacey, secretary; Refreshment table—Vivian Murdoch, chairman; Emma Swan, Nellie Merrill.
Bundle table—Fogg, chairman; Caroline Davis, Hester Walker, Martha Miller.
Apron table—Clara Elbridge, chairman; Martha Rowe, Edith Parker, Edith French.
Lunch table—Alta Sheen, chairman; Vera Kilgore, Addie Hill, Edith French.
Quilt committee—Nellie Merrill, chairman; Alta Sheen, Eva Fogg, Addie Hill, Emma Swan, Maggie Libby, Martha Rowe, Cordelia McKay.

Next meeting of the Veranda Club will be at the home of Clara Jordan, Upper Maine street, Thursday evening, August 10.

Margaret McDonald, a registered graduate trained nurse of Fitchburg, Mass. is visiting her friend, Mrs. Harlow D. Adkins at Mrs. Adkins' father's, Otto Schuer's.

The soldier boys at Laredo are beginning to send back souvenirs—snake-skins, stuffed horned-toads, etcetera.

John A. Woodman has desk room in one of the Direct Importing Co.'s store, and is working for his brother, Charles A. Richardson, at the meat market. D. W. Danforth, who has been out of the Direct Importing Co.'s store for a few weeks past on account of illness, resumed work Monday morning.

Perry Russell passed his 82nd birthday Sunday. He is quite active and takes great pleasure in caring for his garden, which he visits and cares for every day.

AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT TO FRIENDS.

The writer has been sorely afflicted for the past four months and more. His was a case of pus and abdominal surgery and waiting on the slow and mysterious ways of nature.

The doctors had something to do with it as did the nurses, but constitution and friends remedied mistakes if any were made, and permits the writer to come back once more, perhaps only for a short time—to again mix up in affairs and take a part among the living.

That he is thankful and appreciates the many kindnesses, courtesies and letters of sympathy, is stating it mildly and he hopes to be of service to himself and the community in which he lives for many years to come. F. W. Sanborn.

Blows from a Norway Industry.
Did you know that perhaps your car body was shaped by a mallet made in your own town?

Well, it is quite probable, for some two months ago the Novelty Turning Company at the Falls started an advertising campaign on hard wood mallets and as a result are now supplying the following automobile manufacturing firms which use such mallets: that are used in knocking the bodies of the cars into their graceful curves and outlines—Auburn Automobile Company, Auburn, Ind.; Willys, Overland Co., Toledo, Ohio; Cadillac Motor Car Co., Detroit, Mich.; Mercer Auto Co., Trenton, N. J.; Packard Motor Car Co., Detroit, Mich.; Buick Motor Car Co., Detroit, Mich.; and Pennsylvania Railroad Co.

Besides this the Novelty Turning Co. supply the United States Government with handles for all kinds of intrenching tools and other turned products of wood.

Thirty-eight Years A-Go.

Major Shorey of the Bridgton News is authority for the statement that the New Church (Swedenborgian) was organized 38 years ago at Fryeburg by 57 members and he speaks of Rev. Mr. Stone as its first pastor.

We wonder if this is the Rev. Baman N. Stone and if he has been pastor there all these years?

The Bridgton News last week in its 38 years-back department says:
Brigadier Gen. Geo. L. Beal of Norway honored the senior editor with a call.

Thomas Smiley and a party of six were tipped out of a boat in Highland Lake and the three men with great difficulty swam ashore bringing in the three ladies.

This is the Tom Smiley of dry goods fame and five stores and he has never since allowed a boat to be over loaded. It was a narrow escape and taught a lesson not easily forgotten. It was reported in this paper at the time.

The Highland Pythian Lodge of Bridgton and Grand Chancellor Chase, visited Norway 38 years ago last week. He instituted a lodge of K. of P. "Fourteen" of the Bridgton delegation toiled all night to teach the Norwegian courage linked with caution in all life's affairs," says the Bridgton News. Delegates were there from Portland, Lewiston and Bath.

This is the Pennesssevasse Lodge and is in a flourishing condition and has been ever since it was organized.

Tender Hearted.

A chubby little Norway lad rushed to a passing lady holding out his closed hand. He opened it and it was empty, and said "This grasshopper has been good to me. He has given me some molasses."

"You would not hurt the grasshopper?" inquired the lady.
"No," replied the boy. "I wouldn't hurt the grasshopper, I am going up to the lake and put him on a hook and catch a fish."

Bridge Street Bridge Rebuilt.
Bridge street bridge has flunked. That is, some of the split stone bearing up the rail has fallen into the water. It is fenced off where the rail should be and traffic is going over it as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connell have rented the furnished rooms of Mrs. B. O. Porter on Water street where they will do light housekeeping.

A Narrow Escape from Injury.
Tuesday afternoon while Mrs. W. B. Lye was driving up Shepard's hill near Crockett's bridge in a Buick car owned by Mrs. A. P. Bouton of Elizabeth, N. J. she was unable to make the hill on high speed and in changing the gears, the car started back down the steep hill.

Mrs. Lye applied the brakes which were insufficient to stop the momentum of the car. Unfortunately the car was not kept in the road, but swerved to the right and crashed down the steep hill, the car started back down the steep hill.

Strangely enough no one of the party was injured and little damage was done to the car. The Norway Auto Company was called and recovered the car and made repairs. The other members of the party were: Mrs. E. L. Bouton, Miss G. L. Bouton and the two children of Dr. and Mrs. Lye.

Will the Sand Fleas Come this Year?
Thirty years ago when putting in the Water System and the streets were dug up and the soil disturbed, sand fleas appeared in great volume as to disturb village residents.

Miss Stella Pike at the Norway National bank calls the writer's attention to this and he distinctly remembers the flea nuisance of that summer. The cause was attributed as stated above but with the sewer was put up nothing was heard of inconvenience in this line.

All hope to escape serious trouble in this line while the new street is being built this season.

The bite of sand fleas and the poison of brown tailed moths is something to be avoided.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Pike were in Portland Saturday with their son Robert to see a physician. Robert was having trouble with his nose from which matter was discharging. After an examination he was etherized and the nostril probed and a small ward of cotton removed which was found to be causing the trouble.

Mrs. R. J. Bruce entertained a party of friends at her home on Winter street Tuesday evening. A pleasant evening was enjoyed with music and lunch. Refreshments of sandwiches, hot coffee, ice cream, cake and fancy cookies were served.

The Canadian Express of Norway is outgrowing their present quarters. Alton Curtis says they need more room or less egg crates.

Great improvement! Have you noticed it? Concrete re-enforcement, iron nailed on the door step one door west of John Fletcher's candy shop. The thin edge of the iron makes uncomfortable the seat of the loafers. A great idea!

Alexander Collins, the 9 year old son of Mrs. Mary Collins, who has been at St. Mary's Hospital at Lewiston for the past three weeks where he underwent a surgical operation, returned home Saturday night.

The car of Dr. E. J. Noyes of Lovell, who was recently coming to Norway, refused to go when it got to the Iron Bridge, where Fred Kilgore's steam mill is located. He soon found he had lost the gasoline tank and thinking he would have to walk only a short distance to find it, he walked back and imagine his surprise when he had to walk to Bisbee town, three miles before he found the tank.

WEST PARIS.

Both Bones Broken.
Fred Smith is staying at Mrs. J. F. Woods' since his accident Thursday night. He was returning home about 11 o'clock when his motorcycle caught in a rut in the road near the water tub on this side of Snow's Falls and threw him off, breaking both bones above the ankle of his left leg. His cries for help aroused Robert Benson who lives near there and he went to his aid. He was taken to Mrs. Woods' home and a doctor summoned at once. He is getting along as comfortably as could be expected.

An Enjoyable Lawn Party.
The lawn social was very successful. Mrs. W. W. Dunham's lawn is a beautiful place on which to hold such an entertainment and the evening, although a little cooler than desired, was not very bad. A good crowd gathered in the shade set on the lawn and Arthur Welcome of Wallaston, Mass., in his clear, beautiful voice sang six selections, a few old familiar songs were sung by a chorus composed of the program. Mrs. D. A. Grover presided at the piano while Mrs. J. F. Grover window and the singers stood on the porch outside. Ice cream readily sold after the music. A good food sale in the afternoon and the circle realized more than they expected.

Mrs. Lena S. Herriock is spending a few weeks of her vacation with her friend Mrs. White.

THE MODERN CHURCH

That the church is a necessity in the land no one can reasonably doubt. But the country churches, except in the large villages, hardly have their own. The old time supporters pass away and there are not enough new ones to fill their places.

Amusements and Sunday visiting are indulged in by far too many people of all classes. Take up a local newspaper and you will find columns after columns of items similar to this: "Mr. and Mrs. George Blank and daughter Elizabeth were visitors at Amasa Brown's or week-end visitors at Abel Jones's," etc., etc.

Sunday visiting has increased since the advent of the automobile; at any rate the people go further to visit. But few people in the rural districts go to church at all from year to year. The ministers are well educated, their sermons are scholarly and up to date, but they lack vigor and earnestness, and they fail to attract audiences. As a rule they are not reformers, they do not appeal directly to the sinner. They do not carry conviction like the sermons of Billy Sunday nevertheless, they are interesting and instructive to those who care to listen.

But Sunday attracts hearers by his odd manner of presentation as well as by his depth of reasoning. He attacks popular sins and disagreeable subjects with force and fearfulness. If one-half of his converts remain true to the faith and keep promises, he will do a great work.

But even he has his denominational limits. He denounces the Unitarians and the Christian Scientist, but they both occupy an advanced position in the religious world and will go on just the same, regardless of his arguments. If he would learn a few lessons from each of them he would be balanced better.

However, the average minister is level headed, and the world needs him more than it does such extremists as the late (?) Frank W. Sanford. It is true we have once in a while a scandal among ministers and that weakens the influence of the others. But it should not be so. Those who remain true should be supported all the more vigorously.

I admit the man who could see "Sermons in Stones, books in running brooks and good in everything."

Were I in churchless solitude remaining far from all voice of preachers and divines. My soul would find in flowers of God's or priests, sermons, shrines.

Robinson Crusoe wrote "O Solitude where are the charms that sages have seen in thy face?" Better ask the sages instead of the solitude.—W. W. Maxim.

OXFORD

Camp Oxford.
Prof. Adelbert F. Caldwell's summer camp for boys at Oxford is a most interesting set of boys from all over the country. Among the boys at Camp Oxford at this year is Herbert White, son of the Hon. Wallace White of Lewiston, republican candidate for Congress in the Second Maine district. There are three boys from Havana, Cuba, and the others hail from Missouri, Indiana, New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Illinois, Colorado, Florida and Alabama.

These lads have distinguished and in many cases wealthy parents. Among the boys who have attended this camp at different times are sons of Editor Bob of the Ladies' Home Journal, Bishop of the Episcopal Church, Bishop Francis T. McConnell, David D. Downy of New York and grandsons of the late former vice-President, Adlai B. Stevenson of Bloomington, Ill., and D. T. Devitt Tallmadge of New York.

The boys now in camp are a wonderfully healthy lot. The camp program includes rowing, swimming, diving, fishing, playing baseball, basketball, tennis and almost every other outdoor sport. The boys also have an orchestra and in the evening spend their time reading the best publications and in listening to fascinating stories related by Professor Caldwell and his assistants. A great variety of athletic contests are a leading feature of camp life. The boys are so tanned that it is doubtful if even their mothers know them when the season ends.

Prof. Caldwell started the camp 15 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Towne and daughter, Beulah of Bridgton, are the guests of Mrs. Etta Towne.

Ralph Edwards left Tuesday for Poland Camp Ground, where he is to have charge of the cooking in the boarding house during camp meeting.

George Needham of Mechanic Falls has opened the store which was occupied by E. W. Marshall, but has been closed for some time.

Daisy Chase entertained her music pupils at a picnic at Have-a-Rest Cottage on the shore of Lake Penesseewassee in Norway, last Friday. Two automobiles took them from this place. Those who attended were the Misses Marjorie Lebrooke, Louise and Beatrice Kay, Esther Bean, Margaret Heslop and Clara Walker, and Masters Paul Adams and Tommy Dunbar.

A big Republican drive in Oxford county, taking in every town and hamlet and covering a period of three days, will start at Kezar Falls, Saturday afternoon and evening. In the invading party will be Carl E. Milliken, candidate for Governor; Col. Frederick Hale and Bert M. Farnell, United States senatorial candidates; and Wallace H. White, Jr., congressional candidate of the second district.

On Monday afternoon there will be a meeting in Bethel, and in the evening another in Norway, while Tuesday will take in the territory between Norway and Rumford Falls.

At the Rumford Falls meeting Tuesday evening there will be a torchlight procession.

At the Rumford Falls meeting Tuesday evening there will be a torchlight procession.

HIRAM

Fire Destroyed Building.
On Saturday morning, July 29th at 9-10 o'clock, the residence and farm building of H. C. Wadsworth were entirely destroyed by fire from sparks catching on the roof. Mr. Wadsworth and his wife, and his father, Llewellyn A. Wadsworth were at home and a glance showed that the buildings could not be saved, and a call was sent for aid. The neighbors came promptly and rendered efficient assistance in saving a part of the household goods, for which grateful thanks are extended.

It was formerly a summer resort known as Mountain View Farm, accommodating thirty-five boarders, and a large amount of furniture stored in the rooms were destroyed. Llewellyn Wadsworth occupied two rooms and a part of the out-building and had one of the most extensive collections in this part of the State, of books, papers, manuscripts, historical data for a History of Hiram, choice literary treasures, some 15,000 letters, hundreds of souvenirs and rare and curious articles and relics enough to load two hay-racks, the entire collection of his 77 years.

The fire spread so rapidly that only one trunk and a few armfuls were saved, the fire having started near the rooms. Mr. Wadsworth with coals falling on and around him, and his clothing on fire, at last sought his own safety. His call for help was heard and his son took him out through a window. He was severely burned about his shoulders and right arm. He was taken to the house of Melville Gould and the physician who dressed the burns thinks they will heal in a few weeks.

The house was built in 1815 and had two additions three stories high, two buildings of one story, a carriage house, and a barn with about ten tons of hay. Eli C. Wadsworth had an insurance of $1000. The loss was nearly twice that amount. The cottage across the lawn was saved, also the library.
